If position closure was not requested by you, there could be other reasons for positions to be closed automatically such as client's trading account reaching a Stop out level, where the company will automatically close positions at the current market price starting from the most unprofitable one. Another reason could be that a preset Stop Loss or Take Profit order was triggered. Additionally, in case of CFD future contracts, positions that are not closed prior to the expiration of the contract shall be automatically closed upon expiry of the contract.
